Dear Mr. and Mrs. Runstad,

What is your favorite work of art from Seattle Art Museum's collection?

Perhaps you are eager to admire the magnificent 12th century Amida Buddha when the Seattle Asian Art Museum re-opens in February? Maybe when you visit the galleries downtown you inevitably find yourself in the Italian Room, drawn in by its rich, warm, 500 year old wood paneling. Or possibly you are inspired by Alexander Calder's Eagle as its shadows and lines shift with the colors of the sunset on a warm summer evening at the Olympic Sculpture Park. With nearly 25,000 works of meticulously selected and expertly cared for art from around the world, SAM's collection has a lot to offer. It represents a wide range of cultural and historical perspectives, and by its very nature cannot be replicated, making it truly one-of-a-kind.

Caring for a collection of this magnitude, spread across three locations is no small feat. That is why I am writing you today and asking for your support of the SAM Fund. Gifts to the SAM Fund directly impact this collection, from ensuring we can safely store the priceless paintings and artifacts it contains, to providing the tools needed to conserve and display them.

Sharing this global collection as a means to inspire and engage the community is at the core of SAM's mission. It is utilized as a powerful resource for a variety of educational opportunities like Art Goes to School, a program that engages thousands of students in interactive art-making workshops that are held in conjunction with tours of SAM's collection. This body of work also fosters inclusive programs like Art Beyond Sight, which grants visitors with low or no vision free tours of the collection galleries that feature verbal descriptions and touchable materials for a comprehensive experience that exemplifies the capacity art has to resonate with people from all walks of life.

Whether it's groundbreaking modern masterpieces like Jackson Pollock's Sea Change, or an ancient Egyptian Funerary Portrait, SAM's collection, its preservation, its care, and its ability to touch the lives of countless visitors depends on your support of the SAM Fund. Please give your gift today and help SAM continue to connect art to life.

Thank you for your support,

Membership and Annual Giving Director
